Portland Friends Meeting
Meeting for Worship for the Conduct of Business
August 1, 2021, 7:00 – 8:45 PM
On Zoom

We began in silent worship at 7:00 p.m. on August 1st, gathered remotely and connected via Zoom. Christine Fletcher provided technical support for the meeting. There were 33 members and attenders present.

Our presiding clerk, Rob Levin, read the query: Do you seek the leadings of the Light in Meeting for Business as you do in worship? Do you make an effort to maintain your awareness that God is with us as we work? Do you proceed in a peaceable spirit with forbearance and warm affection for each other? (NEYM Interim Faith and Practice 2014)

Clerk's Sharing

Rob welcomed any first timers to Meeting for Business while acknowledging that it was his first-time clerking. He let those gathered know he would appreciate suggestions along the way if he had missed something obvious, as well as feedback afterward if he had mis-stepped anywhere, or if he did something well.

Time estimates were shown on the agenda, but Rob acknowledged that they were not hard and fast limits, but a way of trying to set expectations for himself and for everyone participating.

He expressed that this was a Meeting for Worship for the Conduct of Business which is what the queries were chosen to focus our attention on and that he hoped we would bring that spirit to our time together.

The clerk also discussed the Grounding Documents that were sent out with the agenda which included, "Role of those Present", "Role of the Clerk", and "Making Presentations to Meeting for Business" from a recent clerking workshop which he hoped would be useful to both newcomers and longtime Meeting for Business attenders. Lyn and Rob will probably share those again in the coming months.

Hybrid Worship Experiment Midpoint Report – presented by Lyn Ballou

Background. As discussed at the June Meeting for Business, we have been engaged in experiments since June 20 with in-person, virtual and hybrid (both joined together) in order to inform further discernment of our way forward into the fall.

Experience. Over the summer a limited number of worshippers wearing masks (unless giving a message) returned to the Meetinghouse for Meeting in person, usually joined by virtual worshippers on Zoom. Assisted by Luke Hankins and Chris Fitze, we experimented each Sunday with equipment permitting the "Roomers" and the "Zoomers" to see and hear each other. Last Sunday we held two separate worships, one virtual and one in the room.

Numbers in the room were fewer than a half dozen at first but have risen to the teens in recent weeks. Virtual attenders have numbered anywhere from 10 to 16.

We put temporary information on the website to alert new attenders that there were both in-person and virtual meetings happening, and several found us during July.

Findings so far. In order to well ventilate the room, we have used both ceiling and window fans. We have employed air filters loaned to us by the Friends School and plan on acquiring our own. We have tried to adjust the location of the TV monitor so that the Roomers and Zoomers feel connected, and we have learned that we need to use a microphone in the room if we wish Zoomers to be able to hear Roomers. They have only been able to try this once.

Our efforts have required time, patience and adaptability from our tech assistants and the Co-Clerks. While some of this is due to the experimental nature of the work, it appears that whatever systems we ultimately approve may benefit from ongoing structured technical support.

Community Input. In June we decided we would as a community be taking up the issues involved in how we want to worship at the September 12th Meeting for Business. We want to hear about your experiences and needs before the next Ministry and Counsel meeting on September 1st.

Ministry and Counsel Report – presented by Beth Bussiere-Nichols

Discernment Process for Hybrid Worship Experiment

The Co-Clerks of meeting and the Ministry and Counsel Committee are recommending a discernment process for next steps in our Zoom/in person exploration of worship and how we as a community might make decisions around this moving forward. We will listen to Spirit and Friends concerns and enthusiasm. In August, a survey will be conducted to gather more information about Friends' conditions and desires, how Friends are doing and what they are longing for in worship. In addition, the Co-Clerks are planning to conduct focused outreach to vulnerable community members, including people we haven't seen in a while, about the future of Zoom and in-person worship. It is anticipated that we will have an extended Meeting for Business on September 12th (probably 30 extra minutes), as well as a possible Threshing Session in the weeks after that, to help us reach unity and a Sense of the Meeting around these issues.

The question being asked of the meeting is whether focusing on getting back together in the meetinghouse means that we are creating a worship experience that is best for certain groups. In other words, are we being welcoming for all (including families with unvaccinated children or other health concerns)? When that happens and where that happens will vary.

Thoughts and concerns were provided on the discernment process during the meeting. (Clerks or Ministry and Counsel welcome feedback offline as well.)

A concern was expressed that the status of Covid in our community was not mentioned as a factor in determining how we will go forward. Beth responded that the status of Covid in our community will require fluid planning and will be part of our discernment as well as being conscious of the health status of those in our community, especially those who are particularly vulnerable among us.

There was a hope expressed that the Survey would be an open-ended opportunity for conversation about our concerns and about expressing who we are as a community. Maggie Nelson has offered to assist with the survey. She has done a similar survey for NEYM with the Young Friends. The survey will not be about statistics but people's spiritual condition and their hopes and concerns so that we have good information going into September.

Acceptance of Transfer of Membership for Jay O'Hara

Ministry and Counsel accepted the joyful recommendation from his clearness committee to accept Jay O'Hara's request for membership transfer from Sandwich Monthly Meeting to Portland Friends Monthly Meeting.

Anne Harwood Memorial Minute

Beth read Anne Harwood's memorial minute which was approved by the Meeting. We are grateful to all those who reached out to the community and assisted in drafting Anne's memorial minute. Ann's daughters have expressed interest in holding a Memorial service at some point but currently they have not made a decision as to the timing.

Wabanaki REACH Program in October

PFM's next step in our journey toward right relationship with Indigenous people is to offer Wabanaki REACH's 3-week program: Decolonization and the Role of Faith Communities on three Monday evenings in October -- October 4, 18, & 25; 6:30 -8 p.m. It is hoped that everyone will attend. Current events have called attention to "Indian Boarding Schools". Quakers are one of the faith communities that ran a number of the schools. Please consider being part of the conversation.

Jennifer Frick expressed that she hoped that we all can come together with a shared understanding of the history. In an effort to come into right relationship, she is starting a book group in September to discuss, "The Gathering". Dates for the book group are not yet set but she is proposing that it would take place over 4 weeks with a 1- 1 ½ hour gathering each week in the hope of completing the 4 sessions in advance of the October program.

NEYM Sessions: Saturday Plenary – gkisedtanamoogk and Shirley Hager will be the afternoon presenters. This is part of a series of gatherings to bring together settlers and Indigenous peoples. You are welcome to register for NEYM Sessions or Falmouth quarter has been invited to view it as a group in person at the meeting house.

Ann Dodd-Collins – Family Promise Coordinator

The meeting enthusiastically approved Ministry and Counsel's recommendation of Ann Dodd-Collins as the Meeting's Family Promise Coordinator. She had previously been serving informally as our coordinator.

Greater Portland Family Promise Report – presented by Ann Dodd-Collins

Greater Portland Family Promise, like Portland Friends Meeting, is very different today than it was before COVID-19 showed up in Maine and the state locked down in March 2020. GPF, like Portland Friends Meeting, is still trying to figure out just how we are going to live into this new reality. Some things are certain, however.

In previous years we had been asked to sign a 1 year covenant with GPF, though we did not sign a covenant last year because of Covid. GPF no longer calls the agreement a covenant, but it is now calling it a partner commitment.

We have been asked by GPF to enter into the Greater Portland Family Promise Partner Agreement, in order to formally re-establish PFM's relationship with GPF. Unlike the covenants that we have signed in the past, this agreement explicitly lists the work that we are being asked to do now and may be asked to do in the coming year. There are currently three programs in place. We already participate in all three, so executing the agreement will simply affirm what we are already doing as a Meeting. The three programs are:

Homelessness Prevention

New families are provided with case management and financial assistance. At the April 2021 Meeting for Business, Portland Friends committed to raising funds for this program during the month of September. We will collect Hannaford, Reny's, and other gift cards; quarters for laundry; Uber gift cards or gas cards (if needed); and money to help pay for culturally appropriate food from African markets, bus passes, rental assistance, and moving costs.

Housing Stabilization

In June 2020 we began supporting a family from DR Congo, a mother and her five children who range in age from 12 years to 3 months. We provide nonfood items such as laundry detergent and dish soap, quarters for laundry, and some food. We keep their bus passes loaded. We made sure the children had clothes, school supplies and new shoes for school last fall, and we provided clothing, a car seat, and other baby-related items when the Mom told us this past spring that she was pregnant.

Operational Support

Portland Friends budgets $300 a year for operational support. In addition, since the pandemic we have been donating the money we would normally use for hosting ($250 times four weeks a year) to GPF.

As always Ann is deeply grateful for your prayers, your gifts financial and otherwise, and your support for the families and for those of us at PFM who are doing this work.

The meeting approved entering into the Greater Portland Family Promise Partner Commitment agreement.

Treasurer's Update – Kathy Beach

There will be a change in the way our financial status is reported to the Meeting. Kathy Beach will continue to send out a monthly report to everyone in the Meeting via digital communication but will be giving a verbal report at Meeting for Business quarterly in March, June, September, and December, rather than reporting monthly. It is hoped that this will free up some time in the agenda to discuss other issues of concern, but anyone will have access to the monthly financial information for the Meeting if they desire. Issues that arise between the quarterly reports will be brought by Kathy to Meeting for Business as needed.

HVAC Ad Hoc Committee Report – presented by Karin Wagner

The HVAC ad hoc committee was formed in April 2021, comprised of members of the Buildings and Grounds committee and members of the PFM community, with the goal to address the anticipated need to replace our aged heating system, the potential need to add ventilation and cooling, and to act on the Meeting community's interest in de-carbonization.

The committee began meeting regularly in April to establish their goals, guiding principles, and process. It became clear that the work of upgrading the heating system, with the possibilities of adding cooling and ventilation, together with energy conservation improvements, involves multiple interrelated and complex considerations. They therefore agreed upon the need to engage the expertise of an energy consultant to help them identify energy conservation improvements to reduce energy demand and identify a range of options for new mechanical system(s).

At Meeting for Business on June 6, 2021, the request to start a search for a consultant was submitted and approved so that the work of the ad hoc committee could move forward. However, time constraints at that meeting did not allow for questions or discussion of our request or our work. The committee created a detailed Request for Proposals (RFP) outlining the goals and scope of work, the unique needs of the Meetinghouse, as well as a proposed timeline for the work. The costs for a consultant are unknown but may be in the neighborhood of $10-12,000.

The RFP was sent to 3 candidates in early July, but unfortunately none of the candidates were able to submit proposals, and the committee is now considering other candidates and will be sending them the RFP. They are submitting this updated report to the Meeting for Business to solicit any general reactions or input, and no decisions are needed at this time.

Youth Religious Education Committee Report – presented by Bart Czyz

The Youth Religious Education Committee (YREC) wanted to share updates on several topics with the meeting, followed by a query.

Fall 2021: Since the beginning of the pandemic, YREC has not offered a twice-a-month First Day School (FDS). During that time, YREC has offered several events to bring youth (and the meeting) together. YREC had hoped to return this fall to a version of our traditional routine, but they now see several challenges in doing that. First, it seems possible that offering indoor classes will not be advisable due to pandemic related concerns. Second, due to pandemic precautions, they are unsure of how many adults (specifically, parents) will be able to attend Meeting for Worship while their youth attend class. Finally, they currently have only 3 out of 6 teachers confirmed. (They usually have two for each of the three age-groups.)

Developing our vision for First Day School: YREC observed about a year ago that articulating the general topics of FDS and creating some ready-to-go lessons could make the volunteer role of FDS teacher approachable to more individuals. Further, the committee has wondered if doing such work could also support our meeting to offer First Day School every Sunday. Previously, several people approached about teaching expressed that they "wouldn't know where to begin" or "weren't sure they had the time to do the planning." Also, some previous teachers of FDS expressed that developing lessons for class could be very time-consuming. Over the spring, as YREC attempted to create "ready-to-go" lessons, they recognized that they do not have a vision of what First Day School should generally teach. A clear strength of our FDS is cultivating connection and self-reflection. In addition, recent teachers have provided, on their own initiative, great instruction on topics of Quaker history, the Bible, and current concerns of Friends. However, YREC recognizes that it is not currently able to give clear direction to new teachers who do not already have it.

Youth Religious Education Coordinator: Andy Grannell, our current Coordinator, has identified that it is time for him to transition out of the position. The committee will begin a search for a new coordinator, and a transition could occur as early as September. Ideally, the new coordinator would spend the first few months of their work researching the routines, approaches, and topics that our meeting and other meetings have found valuable for FDS.

Our next steps: YREC proposes to do the following:

1. Begin a search for a new Youth Religious Education Coordinator.

2. During the fall, as weather and other factors permit, offer outdoor activities on 2nd and 4th Sundays for youth.
3. During the fall and early winter, research the approaches to FDS that this and other meetings have found valuable. They will then discern the ongoing guidance and supports they can offer to our teachers to make the role manageable. Finally, YREC will inquire into what new supports need to be in place to allow FDS to occur every Sunday.

A query: YREC presented the meeting with a query, "How should we go about the process of gathering and articulating the topics of FDS?"

It was expressed that this is an opportunity for valuable community conversation and that there is a longing for more intergenerational time. Not many parents were present at the meeting and currently only one parent with a child participating in YRE is on the committee. If we are going to gather comments/input, we need to find a way to include them.

Comments were shared that there are some materials and resources for teachers available at the meeting house and through NEYM and it was also suggested that we reach out to NEYM to determine key people who have been providing youth religious education programs to help us target our conversations.

Appreciation was expressed for Andy's dedication to the children and to the position and that we have been very fortunate to have him as the YRE Coordinator. We were asked to keep an eye out for someone for the coordinator position though we have not gone outside of the meeting previously for a YRE coordinator as a grounding in our community and faith is important to the program.

Minutes of June 2021

The minutes from our June Meeting for Business were accepted as printed in the newsletter.

Rising Concerns of Members and Attenders

As a new addition to Meeting for Business the Co-Clerks would like to begin allowing at the end of the agenda an opportunity for people present to voice an issue or concern that had not been expressed during the meeting. The Clerk asked if there were any such concerns that we would like to bring to the meeting at that time. There were no concerns brought forward.

Closing Worship

Our meeting closed in silent worship at 8:45pm, purposing to meet again at 9:00am on Sunday, September 12, 2021.

Portland Friends Meeting Email Lists – which list do I use?

Our Meeting has two email lists, also sometimes referred to as "e-groups" or "Google groups:"

- 1) PFM Life of the Meeting is for items directly related to Portland Friends Meeting business and other Quaker items. The name was set when the e-group was created and is actually meant for news or announcements directly connected to our Meeting or any Quaker group, organization, or committee. If the news you are sharing is happening at any Quaker meeting, is sponsored by a Quaker organization, or is otherwise supported by a Quaker committee, it belongs on this "Life of the Meeting" list. Occasional messages about Members or Attenders will be shared, as needed. To send an announcement to this list, email: pfm-life-of-the-meeting@googlegroups.com.
- 2) PFM Wider Community, for any items of interest from the PFM community to share, not necessarily directly related to Quakers. Of course, it can include Friends or members or attenders at Portland Friends Meeting, as most of our e-group members are members or attenders at PFM. Messages on this list are not "officially" Quaker. They might be invitations to social gatherings, news about opportunities for activism, connections, or learnings. To send an announcement to this list, email: pfm-wider-community@googlegroups.com.

For any questions related to the lists, including requests to add yourself to one or both: pfm.email.list.owner@gmail.com.

Anne Harwood Memorial Minute 8.1.21

Anne was a nurturer. She woke every morning filled with thoughts of what the world needed and settled into a plan for what small things she could do that day to help. From her profession as social worker she knew that some things required talking out. Other times she sensed that a distracting bit of fun or a big celebratory event was called for. With great courage she pursued what she believed was the best path forward. She applied her skills to her marriages, her daughters and grandchildren, a tiny twig of a white oak, a small sapling of a start-up school, and to the entire Portland Friends Meeting.

Anne was born on September 18, 1947, in Boston, Massachusetts. She grew up in nearby Chestnut Hill as the second of six siblings born to Anna Wheeler Snow and Bartlett Harwood, Jr. Anne spent sixty-five summers on North Haven Island, Maine. It was there that she first learned to love the natural world. Summer meant gardening, painting and, best of all, sailing – all life-long pursuits. After graduating from Vassar College, she moved with her first husband to California. She studied painting and color theory at Rudolf Shaeffer School of Design in San Francisco. When her two daughters Molly and Rose were born, she took much satisfaction and joy in motherhood. After her divorce she earned a second bachelor's degree in social work at Sonoma State University. In 1995 Anne and the girls moved to Portland and then Falmouth, Maine. She completed her master's in social work at the University of New England. She worked in support of Portland's homeless population.

Although Anne did not begin life as a Quaker, when she discovered Portland Friends Meeting, she knew she had found her spiritual home. As well as a religious society, she found two partners there. She first met Sydney McDowell when they both volunteered to serve on a support committee for a Meeting Member. Both social workers, Anne and Sydney started Harwood & McDowell, Collaborative Mediation. Sydney and Anne decided on a white oak leaf as a motif on their stationery and business cards. The white oak is a tree that needs "mothering," to be sheltered from bright sun in its early years.

Soon Anne found a white oak to plant in her yard in Falmouth, and her soon-to-be marriage partner Tom Foote provided the slightly larger grey birches from his farm in Hiram to shade it. Tom and Anne shared a love of nature and a concern for the environment. Like many Quakers, activism was part of their spiritual practice. Many may remember Anne passing out a book entitled Peak Oil and selling us on ways to avoid its use. She was one of the first to own a Prius, but soon there were several in the parking lot every Sunday. At our last in-person worship with Anne, she commented on the quarantine that kept her sequestered at Oceanview, "I hope this pandemic will soon be over and that our civil liberties will be restored." The last part was a surprise to dutiful mask wearers, but they certainly shared her hope.

Anne was very excited to care for the new Friends School of Portland. The school's founder describes Anne as "encouraging of the whole endeavor in her gentle, thoughtful, quiet, calm and focused way." Her granddaughter Bella was in the first Pre-School class. Soon a second granddaughter Julia was old enough to attend. Anne's daughter Rose managed the fundraising campaign that helped to build the new school. Anne courageously served as Treasurer, Assistant Clerk and finally Clerk of the Board, without much past experience in these roles. Her keen intelligence and her trust that she would learn from others were responsible for her success. The former Head of School, Jenny Rowe, remembers Anne as "both supportive and direct, the exact qualities necessary for that role." Anne was a big supporter of the School Auction, taking a cue from the Head to put her name down on any items which had no bidders. A Friend remembers her delight when she bid strategically and successfully on a sailboat!

Because at that time her ride home was over an hour, Anne was invited to stay over after Board Meetings at the Falmouth home of a Portland Friends Member. They had long conversations about the growing Friends School, and Anne invited her hostess on a guided tour. In her will this member made a generous bequest to the School, and Anne hoped that she had helped in part to bring about this wonderful gift. (cont-)

Never one to be idle, almost as soon as Anne retired from the Friends School Board, she became Co-Clerk of Portland Friends Meeting. One of the most valuable skills she brought with her was the ability to elder. She could carefully and caringly describe her observations and how they had affected her personally. Then she would ever so gently engage in a conversation that would inevitably result in an aha! moment and the beginning of a plan going forward. Many Members and attenders have mentioned their gratitude for her guidance.

One spring Sunday Anne decided we needed some fun. She announced that “Tortilla Flats is selling their property to the builder of an elder residence. One of the special attractions is that the occupants will be allowed to have pets. The builder has asked if their cats and dogs could be buried in our cemetery.” The news was met with a wall of silence, as good Quakers struggled to frame their objections in a loving way. There was a communal sigh of relief and laughter when Anne broke the suspense by adding, “Happy April Fool’s Day.”

Then Anne was diagnosed with Parkinson’s, but none of the usual medicines seemed to help her. She was re-diagnosed with Multiple System Atrophy, a disease that progresses quickly and with no known treatments. Despite the crippling of her body, she continued to live as fully as possible. She met friends for lunch at the Grill. She attended the birthday gatherings of the many women in the Meeting who were born in 1947, even when she needed to be transported in a wheelchair. She sailed and then captained her boat even when it was required that she be carried aboard. She rejoiced when her daughter Molly moved back to Maine with grandson Charlie. She regaled everyone with stories of granddaughter Anna who seems to have inherited her grandmother’s determination.

Anne continued painting as long as she could hold a brush and learned how to play bridge, even when her hands could no longer hold the cards. She managed to come to Meeting as often as possible. She invited the entire Meeting to her next-to-last birthday party at Gilsland Farm. Later she was grateful for a group of Quakers who came to her apartment to sing and pray.

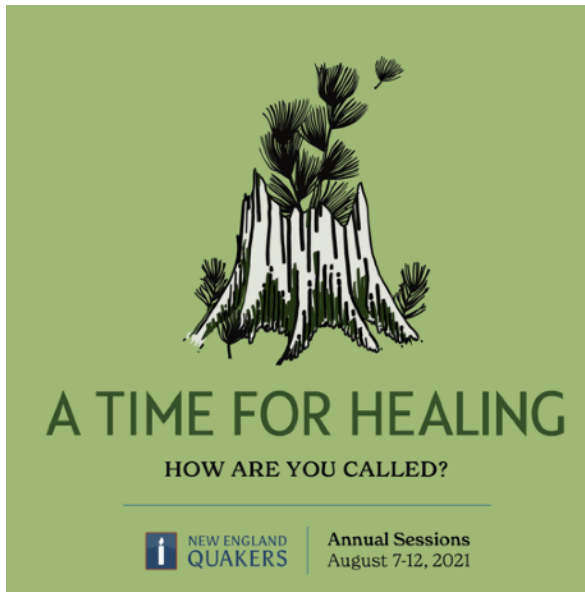

Near the end of her life, Anne wrote by dictation, “My spirit is strong but my body is failing. Loving people is a good antidote to whatever else you have going on. Loving is what I try to do. Loving is the answer.”

An Author in our Midst!

It’s book launch season at The Telling Room! Friends School of Portland and Casco Bay High School graduate, Portland Friends Meeting’s own Maya Denkmire is one of the Telling Room’s “Young Emerging Authors.” Her novel, The Summer of Lost & Found tells a story of family, secrets, and friendship.

It will be available at Print: A Bookstore at the end of the month, or can be purchased by preordering from The Telling Room at: <http://ow.ly/knz750FLSyH>

Annual Sessions

Link for late registrations: <https://neym.regfox.com/sessions-2021>

Dear Friends across New England,

Why do Friends gather together? We gather because we understand on some level that we learn from each other, and do better at discerning God's will for us. And, because in most cases, we like each other! Why do Friends gather together for the Annual Sessions of New England Yearly Meeting? While there are different aspects of Sessions that appeal more to one or another, ultimately, it's the same thing: We hear voices and perspectives we don't hear in our own meetings. We meet people we come to love and respect. We are challenged in new ways to live more fully into the life that is intended for us. We find that when Friends gather, God shows up in unexpected ways.

We're writing to invite you to join with fellow Quakers from August 7 through 12 for Yearly Meeting Annual Sessions. While the pandemic seems to be loosening its hold on New England, it's clear that large gatherings will still be uncomfortable and inadvisable, so we will be meeting primarily by Zoom again. One benefit of meeting via Zoom is that Friends can participate in Sessions without the need to make their way to Vermont.

Last year at this time, we had hoped that on-line Sessions would be a one-time event. A year later, we've all been through a long and difficult journey, challenging for all and more painful and costly for some. And while some Friends choose to not participate on-line, many meetings report attendance from those far away, or from those who find it difficult to travel and celebrate being able to join without leaving their homes. We have learned new ways to nurture community without being in person. Many of us have participated in worship and business, conversations and even an occasional meal on Zoom.

Knowing that some Friends have begun gathering together in limited numbers in our local meetings, we expect there will be some interest in in-person participation, so we have intentionally structured our opening day, Saturday, August 7th, to allow time for local meetings to gather for fellowship, worship, and connection in small groups in their region.

We hope our theme, "A time for healing: How are you called?", reflects both the grief we bring—from lost lives, interrupted living, and deeper understanding of the effects of empire—and our continuing and growing commitment to working for justice. We expect that different aspects of the theme will be touched on in the Plenary, Bible Half Hours, business sessions, and Home Groups.

After last year's experiment with a longer format, we will return to a Saturday-through-Thursday schedule more consistent with the in-person schedule in recent years.

We Hope You Will Join Us!

We have some challenging agenda items for our Business Sessions which will allow us to engage in important discernment, and which will require all to be grounded and to listen well to the Spirit and to one another.

Again this year, Home Groups will offer opportunities for grounding through small-group spiritual support in several sessions through the week

There will be many opportunities for informal fellowship, conversation, play, and prayer.

We hope you will join us for some or all of this year's gathering—a chance to meet new Friends, catch up with old friends and a time to set aside (some of) your daily cares!
